To Whom It May Concern:

The United States Embassy in Berlin admires the effort of Mr. Norbert Alexiou to found an organization that will bring together the children of American soldiers in Germany and their fathers in America. The bonds between the German and American societies long have been strong ones. The presence of American soldiers in Germany has played a significant role in shaping these German-American bonds. In the life story of Mr. Alexiou and others like him, we see how family ties can endure across the Atlantic and how family members even can be re-united.

Mr. Alexiou's efforts and his television documentation of aspects of this effort should go a long way toward affirming the ongoing relationships between Germans and Americans and should help many to better understand our commonality. We wish him every success and are prepared to offer what support is within our means.

Sincerely,
